

First DLC on the road!

Contributed by Nick56
Wednesday, 02 December 2009
Last Updated Wednesday, 02 December 2009

Only a few days after the official release of Assassin's Creed 2, Ubisoft announces the next great thing belonging to the AC Universe: the first DLC (Downloadable Content) for Xbox360 and PS3 has been announced.

Two separate episodes will be released during the next months:

- "Battle of Forli": This is the name of the first episode which will be available as a download via XboxLive Marketplace and PlayStation Network in January 2010. As the title says we are going to Forli (city in AC2).

- "The Bonfire of the Vanity": The second DLC pack will be available in February 2010.

More information to be revealed soon

Both DLC packs will have a file size of about 1.1 GB each(so leave some free space on your hard disk). The price is unknown, but further information are going to be announced later this month. So stay tuned. Nobody mentioned the PC version and possible DLC for this version, which will be released March, 4th in 2010, so we have to wait for an official clarification of Ubisoft.

Last but not least, you can click this link for an official reference:

PlayStation Life Style - Ubisoft announces DLC for AC2